Oxford Remembers the Past Decade's Turmoil Dimly

student at Oxford, where the radicalism in several open universities in the 1960's had little impact.

By HENRY KAMM... OXFORD, England—Oxford has emerged from the university turmoil of the last decade sedate, its classic facades unmeasured, its lawns unruffled, its domes and students still talking to each other in a spirit of mutual tolerance.

"We have just, against my wishes, agreed to admit two student observers at the sub-faculty level," the political scientist continued. "I think it's absurd. I don't think you should have student observers when you let your hair down. No one likes to look a fool before his students."

thing exceedingly wicked, there is nothing they can do to you." Bridget Townsend, a 19-year-old classics student who is editor of Cherwell, said many of Oxford's 11,500 students had probably never been to Cowley, an industrial suburb where there is a major automobile manufacturing plant.

"The little world of Oxford is very detached from the outside world," Mr. Norton said. In a period in which even the most prestigious universities of Europe have gradually turned into mass education factories, Oxford has made no concessions, although the number of students has grown and more than 90 percent study under partial or total Government grants.

Illinois College Defies Premature Reports and Clings to Life

By GENE L. MAEROFF... MARK CARROLL, Ill. — Mark Twain, who said the news of his death "greatly exaggerated," Illinois College has been cited by premature reports "having gone out of existence."

riculum that is not career-oriented at a time when many young people are shunning the liberal arts for studies that will lead to jobs. Students at Shimer, 30 percent of whom enter out of the junior year of high school, are responsible for hundreds of pages of reading for each class session.

Informality is evident in this class at Shimer College, Mt. Carroll, Ill. Prof. Robert J. Schuler conducts a class in humanities in a lounge.

sources appear to be all but overwhelming. Dr. Conant believes that the college cannot wait until things get better before making needed improvements. In the face of a staggering deficit that could be met only by massive fund-raising, he has enlarged the budget to $1.4 million to allow for faculty expansion and for raises averaging 20 percent for a faculty that has not gotten a pay increase in three years.

The tree, now only a stump, was killed by Dutch elm disease in the same year that Shimer's trustees made their aborted decision to close the college's doors.

tion of Colleges and Secondary Schools, which periodically re-evaluates institutions, sent an evaluation team to Shimer in March and the visitors found the college's position "extremely precarious."

Poll by Time Finds Carter Would Defeat Ford Today

New York, May 2 (Reuters)— Former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia would defeat President
 Ford, 48 percent to 38 percent, if the Presidential election were held today, according to a Time magazine poll.
 The poll, based on interviews with 1,011 representative voters last Wednesday and Thursday, showed a dramatic reversal in Mr. Carter's chances against the President. A poll taken seven weeks ago showed that Mr.
 Ford would defeat Mr. Carter 46 percent to 38 percent. The balance of the voters in both polls
 The latest poll also found that, by a margin of 50 percent to 27 percent, voters would prefer to see a Democrat in the White House next January, the magazine said. However, the respondents were evenly divided on whether they thought a Democrat or Republican would win the election in November.

Students of Hughes's Life Doubt Will Is Authentic

By the personal aides "at the time of my death" to whom he wanted to leave millions? And how did he want "a school scholarship fund for the entire country" to be set up?

Hughes have insisted that from the time Mr. Hughes went into the Desert Inn in 1966 until he moved out four years later, he never left the ninth-floor suite where he lived.

So it appears that Mr. Dummar's story and the purported story is the only known explanation of why Mr. Dummar's name appears in the purported last testament of Howard R. Hughes.

"An absolutely breathless entertainment." —FRANK RICH, New York Post. REDFORD/HOFFMAN "ALL THE PRESIDENT'S MEN". A Wildwood Enterprises Production. A Robert Redford-Alan J. Pakula Film.

Words and Colons As he listed these points, Mr. Hughes would use Arabic numbers, and he followed them with periods, not colons. But the author of the purported will, in listing beneficiaries, wrote "first" and "second" and so on through "tenth".

A striking comparison can be made by holding a sheet of the will and a sheet of one of the purported memos side by side at arms length. Mr. Hughes's known writing presents a regular pattern, with letters slanted slightly, the top to the right, and the lines marching straight across the page.

Lipstick. It isn't always an invitation to a kiss. LOEW'S STATE 2 LOEW'S CINE.

Why Name Dietrich? Why would he name Noah Dietrich as executor? He and Mr. Hughes fought and split in 1958, never to contact each other again, although they had worked together for more than 30 years.

Why would he give one-sixth of his estate to the Boy Scouts of America, when, according to inside sources, he had refused to give money to the Scouts when he was alive, even after the urging of his close Mormon associates, almost all of whom were leading Scouts because of their church's affiliation with the organization?

"A TERRIFIC MOVIE" STAY HUNGRY. Limited Artists. TRANS-LUX EAST/86th STREET EAST.

Convinced by Handwriting But the publishers moved serenely ahead. Mr. Irving had provided them with copies of handwritten letters he said he had received from Mr. Hughes and showed them manuscript pages with interlining in long-hand that he said was Mr. Hughes's.

Papp's 'Threepenny' Echoes Original

THREEPENNY OPERA, by Bertolt Brecht and Kurt Weill as a new translation by Ralph Mannheim and John Willett. Directed by Richard Foreman...

Caroline Kava as Polly Peachum, Raul Julia, center, as Mack the Knife, and David Sabin as Tiger Brown in New York Shakespeare Festival production of 'The Threepenny Opera.'

By CLIVE BARNES For its final offering of its Vivian Beaumont season, Joseph Papp's New York Shakespeare Festival is staging the Bertolt Brecht and Kurt Weill modern classic 'Threepenny Opera.'

Opera. However, it could be set in New York—and with Brecht's very clearly stated views on translation and adaptation, he might himself have found such a course preferable.

Mr. Foreman has directed with a clear and fierce power. He makes wonderful (and very Berliner Ensemble style) use of groupings and stasis, and Douglas W. Schmidt, settings; Theoni V. Aldredge, costumes; Pat Collins, lighting, and the unnamed genius (Mr. Foreman perhaps) who supervised the makeup are all admirable.

Mr. Silverman would have made Weill happy; he certainly made me happy. All the performances have style and class. Raul Julia, with his brooding presence and soft, catlike violence, is ideal as Mack the Knife.

For the Royal Ballet's Lynn Seymour, Dancing Is Not Just Tiaras and Tutus

By ANNA KISSELGOFF The tragic heroine that Lynn Seymour has portrayed since Anne Frank to Shakespeare's Juliet, which she dances tonight opposite Rudolf Nureyev in Kenneth MacMillan's 'Romeo and Juliet.'

What's interesting about Kenneth's characters," she commented, "is that they're not run-of-the-mill people in the situations they're in. He has a wonderful sense of those strange dark areas of life. I find it fascinating. It's not just straightforward."

and Los Angeles, she created a sensation in the 'Teadora Duncan' solo composed for her by Sir Frederick Ashton. The quality of her dancing has always been intense rather than reserved—more concerned with music and dramatic interpretation.

It is not all tiaras and tutus at the Royal Ballet. If there is any dancer today in the British company who is identified with its contemporary dance-dramas, it is certainly Lynn Seymour. American audiences will see more of her in another dramatic repertory this summer when she steps, for the first time, into the ballets of Antony Tudor as a guest artist with American Ballet Theater.

The Canadian-born Miss Seymour was only in the corps when MacMillan, then a young choreographer, began his own career, chose her for the Anne Frank figure in his 1958 'The Burrow.' It was her shattering portrayal as the girl who is raped in Mr. MacMillan's 'The Invitation' in 1959, however, that hurtled Miss Seymour into the limelight.

From 1966 to 1970, she left the Royal Ballet to work with Mr. MacMillan at the Berlin Opera Ballet, where he did the one-act version of 'Anastasia,' which he later expanded into a full-evening production for her. Miss Seymour danced the grueling psychological title role here in 1972, one year after Alvin Ailey created the role of her in his company's ballet, 'Flowers.'

Broadway Friends Honor Abbott

George Abbott, who achieved his record of 116 theatrical credits largely by keeping his eye firmly on the production of the moment, was lured into a rare posture of nostalgia at the Shubert Theatre last night when his Broadway friends staged a special retrospective of the grand old man's 63 years in the theater.

There were songs from Abbott musicals, scenes from Abbott plays, tributes from a star-studded cast of Abbott discoveries and Mr. Abbott himself, who accepted the Handel Medalion, the city's highest cultural award, from Mary Beame, the Mayor's wife, and said he wished he knew how to thank everybody.

Then, apparently unable to think of any better way, the 88-year-old producer-director-actor went home to conduct work on his 117th production.

Mets Beaten in 9th by Astros, Then Win

Fall From Top in 5-4 Loss—Streak Ends

By AL HARVIN The New York Mets found themselves in a contradictory position yesterday after splitting a doubleheader with the Houston Astros...

worth a damn, if you're not in first on Oct. 3," said the first-year pitcher...

Because of Philadelphia's 8-2 victory over the Braves in Atlanta, the Phillies moved into first place ahead of the Mets by 11 percentage points...

The Mets lost the first game because of some sloppy fielding in the fifth inning that allowed the Astros to rebound from a 3-0 deficit...

The Astros won the first game yesterday, 5-4, ending the Mets' seven-game winning streak that was one short of their longest streak since 1972.

The Mets started what they hope will be (another streak by taking the second game, 7-4.

The Mets' manager, Joe Frazier, was philosophical about streaks.

"It's a long season, and I'll tell you one thing it's not homer in the home half of that inning gave the Mets the breathing room they needed in the ninth this time. Then Skip Lockwood set down the Astros 1, 2, 3 in their final turn at bat to pick up his second save of the season...

Mickey Lolich was the victim of the sloppy Met fielding in the fifth inning of the first game, but the defeat went to Bob Apodaca, his reliever, making Apodaca's record 1-1.

Leon Roberts led off that inning with a fly to right. Instead of being an out, it bounced past Bruce Boisclair to the wall for a double.

Grey Gross then bunted for a hit, moving Roberts to third. Roberts got caught in a rundown on Roger Metzger's bouncer to third, but Gross moved to third on the play.

A squibbler by J.R. Richard, the eventual winning pitcher, now 4-1, caught Gross at the plate for the second out, Lolich flipping to Ron Hodges for the tag.

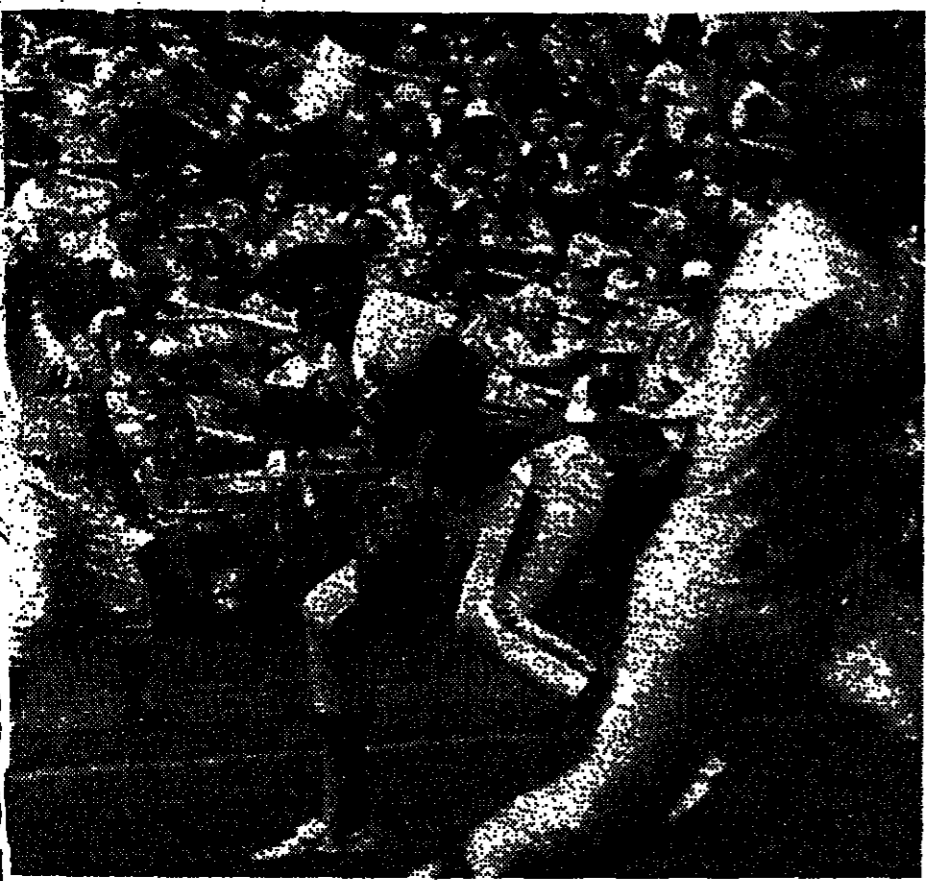

But Milbourne kept the eighth.

worked out of a jam after walking two men with two out in the eighth. When Amos Otis, leading off the ninth for Kansas City, rapped a 1-2 pitch into the left-field corner for a double, the Royals had the tying run in scoring position.

John Mayberry then got a high pitch, also on a 1-2 count, and drove it deep to right for the scoring fly that created extra innings.

The Royals put a runner in scoring position in the 10th, and the Yankees in the 11th, but a double play got Lyle out of his problem and neither Jim Mason nor Mickey Rivers could knock in the runner for the Yankees.

But when Jim Wohlford opened the 11th with a single to center and Otis walked, the Royals were on their way to victory in the rubber game of the three-game series. Brett sacrificed and Mayberry grounded to Chris Chambliss, wide of the first base. Chambliss made the only play he had, a hurried throw home, which skipped under the glove of Thurman Munson, who had the plate blocked.

He was referring to the last good opportunity the Yankees had had to increase their lead. Rivers singled and stole second, and with one out Munson lined a hit to left. Starting for third Rivers slipped and fell, rose and got under way again.

Billy Vukovich, the other leading critic of women drivers and the self-admitted "pig," didn't do much better. His car was the first to drop out of the race—a broken valve—and he was placed 22d and last.

Elder Golf Victor by Stroke As Rivals Falter in Houston

JOHN S. RADOSTA Houston, May 2—Lee Elder won the Houston Open this afternoon without so to speak, swinging a golf club. About an hour and 20 minutes after Elder had completed his fourth round at 278, or 10 under par for the Woodlands Country Club, George Burns, a 26-year-old tour rookie, gave him the tournament by falling out of the lead he had shared or held most of the day.

Farmers Cutting Fertilizer Purchases

have caused many farmers to build stockpiles of basic agricultural chemicals. Peter J. Barry, agriculture expert at E. F. Hutton & Company, wrote in his latest farm outlook survey that, barring abnormal weather, fertilizer price declines since last year could influence strongly the farmers' decision on the rate of application. We believe that it will and that yields will improve generally this year.

the preceding year. Much of the gap was covered by the stocks acquired during the panic buying that followed the sudden surge in petroleum prices in late 1973.

Mr. Finley continued, "In the poorer countries, fertilizer use is not simply a matter of need or supply-demand; it is a question of dollars. He noted that countries with little hard cash often cut back on imports of fertilizer to save dollars while struggling to export agricultural produce to earn foreign exchange. "However, in some Asian lands, such as the Philippines, they have built up a one- or two-year supply of fertilizers since 1974," Mr. Finley added. Perhaps that is why, as the Commerce Department reported last month, American fertilizer export contracts for the first half of 1976 totaled some 480,000 tons on April 12, the latest reporting date, compared with 1.5 million tons one year earlier.

grain deal of 1972 has been somewhat bizarre.

The 1973 grain shortages stimulated the building of new fertilizer plants, among other facilities, which were erected in the late 1960's, when finished in 1974-75. "The 1975 experience in fertilizers was unusual," Mr. Galvin said the other day with some understatement. Even at higher prices, farmers could have profited from increased application. "However, the unusual economic outlook and lower crop prices caused American farmers to reduce fertilizer usage so that from June 1974 to June 1975 United States fertilizer usage dropped 9 percent from the previous season—the first decline since 1956." Mr. Galvin, citing the cost of new facilities, said, "Today's fertilizer prices are unrealistically low, but the prospects for the industry are excellent." For one thing, he noted, almost all available farm land in this country is in use—332 million acres. Increased food production now will depend largely on agricultural chemicals.

1. Presentation of the Annual Report, of the Accounts for 1975 and of the Auditors' Report. Approval of the Annual Report and of the Accounts for 1975.
2. Statutory vote on release of the Board of Directors and of the Management.
3. Election regarding the appropriation of the profit.
4. Elections in accordance with the Articles of Association.

In order to be admitted to the general meeting (with a proxy) at the Company's Transfer Office in Cham up to Monday, 17th May 1976 at noon, at the latest. The certificates will be delivered against the statement of a bank that the shares are deposited or upon deposit of the shares in the office of the Company where they remain lodged with the other of the general meeting.

The Annual Report, Notice 1975 (comprising the Balance Sheet, Profit and Loss Account, with comments, the Auditors' Report and the proposals for the appropriation of profit) is available as from 15th May 1976, to the holders of bearer shares at the Registered Office at Cham and Vevey, and at the offices of the Paying Agents of the Company.

The holders of registered shares whose names are entered in the Share Register will, within the next few days, receive at their last address communicated to the Company an envelope containing the Notice for the General Meeting, and a form completing an application for being a card giving admission to such meeting as well as a proxy. On the other hand, the aforesaid Report will be dispatched a few days later.

The shareholders are requested to address any correspondence concerning the General Meeting to the Transfer Office of the Company at Cham (Switzerland).

Sunnier than Cher.

When Newsweek works harder for you than The Sonny and Cher Show, it's time to question an all-TV schedule.

Prime-time TV programs like The Sonny and Cher Show can give you top ratings. But here's a way to make things look even sunnier.

Work out a print/TV mix that includes Newsweek. Or Newsweek plus Time.

Newsweek alone in many cases delivers ratings comparable to major TV shows.

For example, with men 18 to 49, Newsweek gets a rating of 19.4, which beats The Sonny and Cher Show and most of TV's top ten. Add Time and you arrive at a gross rating of 38.4 (men 18-49)—better than All in the Family and Kojak combined.

With the newsweeklies you can come up with the same kind of ratings you expect from TV—and, with Newsweek, at a lower cost per thousand.

Which means you get more gross rating points for your dollars.

And with magazines like Newsweek you get something even more important.

You reach that large segment of the population you just can't reach effectively with TV alone.

A recent major study refers to this important market as the "magazine imperative" group: people who are heavy magazine readers and relatively light TV viewers.

This group includes 45% of all men 18 to 49, 54.9% of the men with household incomes of over $20,000, and almost half of all professional/managerial men.

The "magazine imperatives" account for 43.6% of the new cars purchased by men, 53.5% of the radial tires, 53.5% of all the air trips.

The best way to reach them is to shift a portion of your TV dollars to the newsweeklies. Newsweek alone. Or Newsweek plus Time.

You'll discover a Newsweek/TV mix can get you a bigger share than Cher.

Apartment House Tenants WE ARE IN A STRIKE EMERGENCY

Local 32B is preparing to strike... Provoked by Landlords and Agents, Who Want a Strike!

Local 32B, Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO, wishes to advise you that the citywide contract covering superintendents, handymen, elevator operators, doormen, porters, security personnel and other apartment house employees, expired on April 20, 1976.

Today the apartment house worker must try to support his family and himself on an average weekly take-home pay of $145., depending on family status. He cannot support himself, let alone his family, on these poverty wages.

For the past few months Local 32B has made every effort to negotiate a new contract with the employers. Our reasonable requests for contract improvements have been rejected. The landlords and agents have not offered one cent.

Vincent McDonnell, chairman of the New York State Board of Mediation, has tried to bring both parties together, but it appears that the more than 20,000 members of Local 32B working in apartment houses have no choice but to strike.

Our Union, Local 32B, has always been deeply conscious of its responsibilities to people who live in apartment houses serviced by our members. However, our members are entitled to a fair living wage.

Cornell Study Finds 11% of Surgery Is Unnecessary

By JANE E. BRODY

A Cornell University Medical College study suggests that 11 percent—and perhaps as many as 13 percent—of persons who are told by their physicians to have an operation may not need the surgery after all.

The director of the study, Dr. Eugene G. McCarthy, said in an interview that if the same proportion applied nationally, two million or more operations done on Americans each year might be avoidable.

Dr. McCarthy said that further studies were needed to know whether this proportion would hold across the country, and that presently "in a truly scientific sense, we cannot make a nationwide extrapolation." But, he added that he suspected that the percentage found in his study would be "close to" a national rate of surgery that patients could do without.

In fact, the study indicates that more than half of the persons who did not need the surgery their doctors recommended turned out not to need any medical treatment at all. This suggests, Dr. McCarthy said, that in addition to the recommended therapy, "the initial diagnosis may have been in error."

Follow-Up on Patients

A report on the study findings, prepared with Ann Susan Kamons, a research associate, is scheduled to be presented today to the American Federation for Clinical Research meeting in Atlantic City.

The study represents a follow-up on the fate of persons who were told by one doctor that they needed an elective (or nonemergency) operation and were then referred to a consulting specialist who told them that the operation was not needed at that time.

The study showed that within one of four years after the consultation, only one in eight such persons subsequently needed surgery for clear-cut medical reasons—because "their symptoms persisted or worsened."

Another one in eight decided to go ahead with the surgery despite the consultant's advice against it, and medical reasons may have been involved in some of these decisions, Dr. McCarthy said.

All told, of 1,011 persons who had to seek the advice of a consulting specialist before undergoing elective surgery that had been recommended by their original physicians, 161—16 percent—were told by the consultant not to have surgery.

The followup study revealed that 11 percent of the 1,011 persons still had not had the surgery one to four years later.

If those persons who had ignored the consultant's advice against surgery were counted as avoidable operations, Dr. McCarthy calculated that the use of a second opinion prior to surgery could eliminate 13 percent of initially recommended operations.

Second Opinion Programs

"The findings more than justify the wide adoption of second opinion programs for elective surgery for appreciable improvement in the quality of care and effective cost utilization," Dr. McCarthy, who is a public health specialist, concluded.

Among patients in the McCarthy study, several million dollars in hospital costs have already been saved because patients did not have surgery after seeing the consultant.

Approximately 28 second opinion programs for elective surgery have already been started or will be operating by the end of this year, Dr. McCarthy said.

They are being run by various Blue Cross-Blue Shield programs, including that of Greater New York, commercial insurance carriers and union welfare funds. In these cases, the insurer pays for the consultation and usually establishes a panel of consultants who are board-certified specialists.

Unexplainable Explosion

Dr. McCarthy said there had been "an unexplainable explosion" in the incidence of surgery in the United States in the 1970's—"an increase of 25 percent between 1971 and 1975."

He said that "it is up to the surgeons themselves to do something about this." He predicted that "the weight of evidence will motivate change."

The McCarthy study involves 10 New York labor unions whose members and their families were offered the opportunity to consult with one or more doctors on a panel of board-certified specialists before the patients underwent elective surgery. In some of the unions, such consultations were "mandatory" if the welfare fund was to pay for the operations.

The conclusions described above were based only on the mandatory group, since the voluntary group represented self-selected patients who may have sought a second opinion because they already had doubts about the necessity for surgery.

The American College of Surgeons, which expects to publish a statement on second opinion programs later this week, said "the college has always encouraged second opinions as a desirable part of good surgical practice."

Dr. James H. Sammons, executive vice president of the American Medical Association, said that "consultation has long been a concept of sound medical practice" and the association "would urge any patient who has any doubts to seek a second opinion."

However, Dr. Sammons said, "the medical community is virtually unanimous that second opinion studies are not valid measurements of surgical necessity."

Degree of Necessity

He added, "There are degrees of necessity. Surgery is often done not to save a life but to make a patient's life more bearable, more useful or more enjoyable. Who is to say where necessary leaves off and unnecessary begins?"

Dr. Francis D. Moore, chief of surgery at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston who is a prominent figure in American surgery, said that while the McCarthy study was "excellent and should be extended to all kinds of medical care," it had not determined an incidence of unnecessary surgery—"merely the number of operations in which opinions differ."

He said the study showed "the value of a second surgical opinion and a way in which unnecessary surgery could be prevented on a massive scale," adding, "It also shows how it helps patients to have a door opened for them to get expert advice."

Dr. Moore said that in the McCarthy study "a lot of the original doctors weren't surgeons" and that in the normal course of events the patients would have been sent to surgeons who in most cases would have weeded out those operations that were not necessary.

More than half the initial physicians seen by patients in the McCarthy study were board-certified specialists who ordinarily do surgery themselves.

Dr. McCarthy said that "since there are now more than 20 million operations done in this country each year, the two million figure may be right on the button."

Referring to the projected number of unnecessary operations reported in The New York Times in January in a series of articles on medical incompetence, Dr. McCarthy said that "since there are now more than 20 million operations done in this country each year, the two million figure may be right on the button."

"Till divorce do us part"

It doesn't sound too traditional does it? But it may well be the wedding vow of the future.

Because marriage is no longer the lifetime commitment it once was. Instead it's becoming a love-time commitment.

When the love goes, so does the marriage.

Consequently, Americans are divorcing at a record rate.

And as more and more marriages crumble, so do more and more attitudes.

This week on Eyewitness News,

Melba Tolliver examines those attitudes. And how much they've changed.

She'll look at just how many Americans are divorcing. And why. What it's doing to them. And to their children.

While she's at it, she'll look at something else that's changing. The laws that allow us to divorce.

This week, Eyewitness News reports on something that's becoming almost as traditional as marriage.

Divorce.

"Divorce Fever." A series on changing attitudes. Reported by Melba Tolliver. Mon.-Thurs. 6 pm Eyewitness News apartment dwellers:

IN FACE OF EXORBITANT UNION-LABOR DEMANDS

HELP US HOLD THE LINE SO YOU DON'T END UP HOLDING THE BAG.

A strike by building service employees is likely to occur at midnight, May 4. Despite all efforts, no settlement has been reached between owners/managers agents (represented by the Realty Advisory Board) and the building employees (represented by Local 32B), on a new labor contract.

Settlement affects you. Currently, most building employees cost an owner $13,000/year, inclusive of such benefits as major medical and Blue Cross, free life insurance, paid sick days, liberal welfare and pensions, up to five weeks paid vacation and more. And that's not counting overtime and gratuities. In fact, building employees are now among the highest paid unskilled workers in the nation.

And, while the cost of living has increased 50% since 1970, the average building employee wage has increased over 100%. Yet, their union is now demanding major wage increases, as well as substantial boosts in fringe benefits.

HELP US HELP YOU

We are working for a speedy resolution. We will try to minimize your inconvenience during a strike, but we are asking your endurance. Because we settle for the sake of expediency, we will all suffer if you have any questions major problems, call your owner/managing agent or R.A.B. at 889-4100. Remember if we don't hold the line we'll all end up holding the bag.

STRIKES AFFECT EVERYONE

We know a strike will be unpleasant for everyone. For residents, building employees, and for owners and managers as well. We know how inconvenient it can become. But we are, nevertheless, asking for your understanding, your cooperation, and yes, even your support. Because, if we, the owners and managers, don't hold the line on the union's inflationary demands, it will end up having a profound effect on both your rent and the services you receive in the years to come.

THE ISSUES

Perhaps understanding the issues will help clarify how the

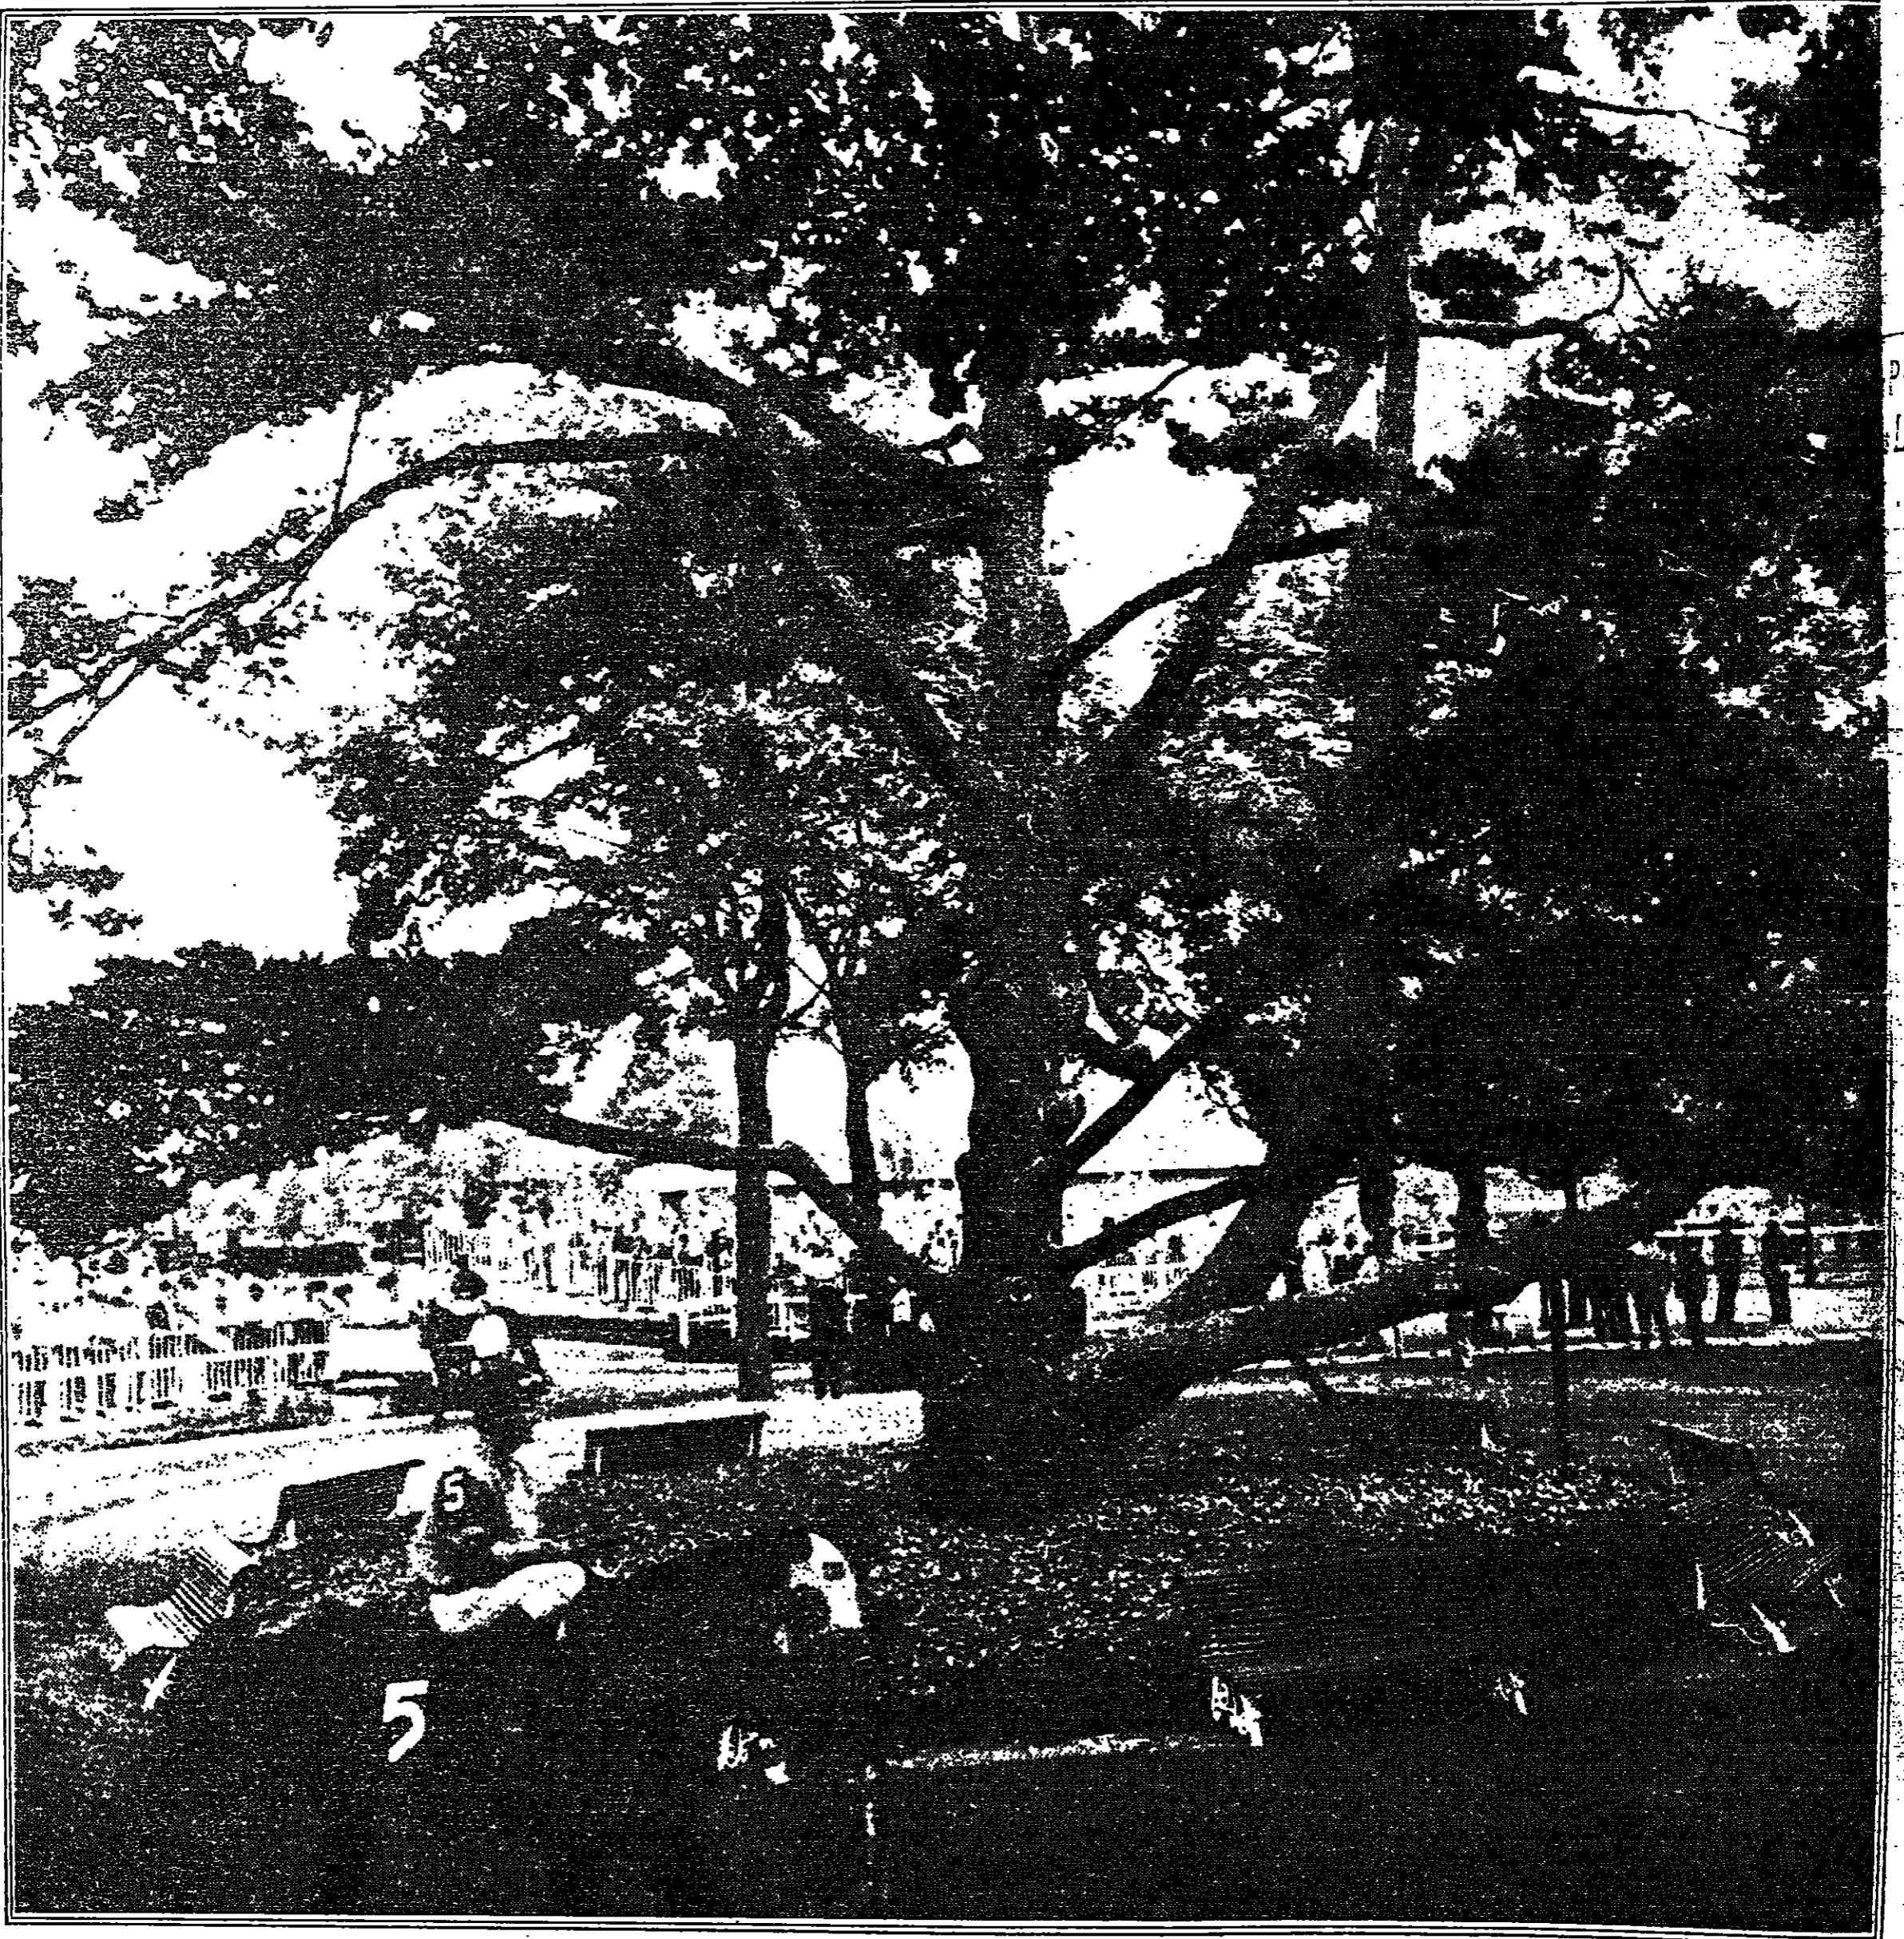

SOME ANSWERS

We're asking Local 32B to do the same thing the City's municipal employees have agreed to—hold the line on increases. A major increase will result in higher rents and maintenance costs. And could seriously jeopardize the buildings' ability to survive at all. NYC already faces a serious real estate crisis. Owners are
